a mediation session. The role of the Mediator was elucidated and distinguished from the role of an Arbitrator, a conciliator and a Judge. Participants were called upon to notice various techniques employed by Professional Mediators to bring parties to an amicable agreement. Following the discussion on Mediation, the focus was shifted to the process of Negotiation. The panel enlightened the participants on the benefits of the negotiation process in enabling swift, innovative and comprehensive resolutions to contentious matters without requiring the intervention of third parties.

Various negotiation principles such as Needs, Interests, Wants and Motivation were understood and thereafter, scrutinized from a practical perspective, wherein the panel harnessed their combined experience to enable the participants to arrive at a lucid understanding of their relevance to a negotiation.

Second speaker Mrs Sweta Singh ,speak about Negotiation Styles were identified as Aggressive, Collaborative, Avoiding, Compromising and Accommodating and thereafter, the participants were called upon to identify their most preferred negotiation styles. Activities were conducted to enable the participants to appraise each style of negotiation. Additionally, the panel advised the participants on the practical import and consequences of each style, and techniques to navigate through the negotiation while employing these styles. A few test situations were identified and these concepts were applied to understand how these indicators enrich the negotiation process and sculpt the outcome of the negotiation process. Additionally, the panel also undertook to explain the process of arriving at these negotiation indicators through examples from real-world situations. The fitness and
